□ Story-Based Questions (3 × 2 Marks = 6 Marks)

Q1. Why does Sophie dream of owning a boutique or becoming an actress? Answer:

Sophie dreams of glamorous professions like owning a boutique or becoming an actress because she wants to escape her mundane reality and believes these roles offer sophistication, fame, and financial freedom. Marking Scheme:

- 1 mark for identifying her dream professions
- 1 mark for explaining her motivation

Q2. Why does Jansie discourage Sophie from having unrealistic dreams? Answer: Jansie is practical and aware of their economic limitations. She knows they are both destined for factory work and feels Sophie’s fantasies will only lead to disappointment. Marking Scheme:

- 1 mark for stating Jansie's practicality
- 1 mark for linking it to their social background

Q3. What does Sophie's relationship with Geoff reveal about her character? Answer:

Sophie admires Geoff's silence and independence. She longs to be part of his world, which symbolizes freedom and adventure, revealing her yearning for a life beyond her own.

Marking Scheme:

- 1 mark for describing her admiration
- 1 mark for interpreting its symbolic meaning

□ Value-Based Questions (3 × 2 Marks = 6 Marks)

Q4. What values are reflected in Geoff's attitude towards Sophie's story about Danny Casey? Answer:

Geoff shows cautious belief and protective concern. Though skeptical, he doesn't ridicule her, reflecting values of sibling loyalty and emotional restraint. Marking

Scheme:

- 1 mark for identifying values (loyalty, concern)
- 1 mark for linking them to Geoff's behavior

Q5. What lesson does Sophie learn from waiting for Danny Casey by the canal? Answer:

Sophie learns that fantasies can be comforting but also painful when they clash with reality.

Her disappointment teaches her the value of emotional resilience. Marking Scheme:

- 1 mark for stating the lesson
- 1 mark for explaining its emotional impact

Q6. How does Sophie's father's reaction to her story reflect his values? Answer:

Sophie's father is dismissive and angry, showing his value for realism and his frustration with impractical dreams. He believes in hard work, not fantasy. Marking Scheme:

- 1 mark for interpreting its symbolic meaning

Q12. What is the significance of the metaphor "prized out of him like stones out of the ground"? Answer: This metaphor describes Geoff's silence and emotional distance. It emphasizes how difficult it is for Sophie to access his inner world. Marking Scheme:

- 1 mark for identifying the metaphor
- 1 mark for explaining its significance

Section C: Long Answer Questions

1 □ Theme-Based Question

Q: Discuss the theme of adolescent fantasy and reality in Going Places.

Answer: In Going Places, A.R. Barton explores the delicate boundary between adolescent fantasy and harsh reality through the character of Sophie. The story captures the dreams of a young girl who yearns for a glamorous life far removed from her working-class background. Sophie imagines herself as a fashion designer, an actress, or the owner of a boutique. Her fantasies are vivid and persistent, offering her an escape from the dullness of her real life. Her claim of meeting football star Danny Casey is a product of this imagination. However, as the story progresses, the gap between her dreams and reality becomes painfully evident. Her wait by the canal for Casey, filled with hope and eventual disappointment, symbolizes the moment when fantasy begins to collapse under the weight of truth.

The story highlights how adolescence is often marked by idealism and unrealistic aspirations. While dreams can be motivating, Barton subtly warns against losing oneself in illusions. Sophie's journey is a poignant reminder of the need to balance ambition with awareness of one's circumstances.

Marking Scheme (5 marks):

- 1 mark: Introduction of theme
- 2 marks: Textual examples and analysis
- 1 mark: Interpretation and insight
- 1 mark: Coherent conclusion

2. Character-Based Question

Q: Describe Sophie's character and her relationship with her family.

Answer: Sophie is portrayed as a dreamy, imaginative teenager who aspires to rise above her modest background. She is ambitious and yearns for a life filled with glamour, fame, and success, often escaping into a world of fantasy to cope with her mundane reality.

Her relationship with her family is marked by contrast and conflict. Her father is a practical man who disapproves of her unrealistic dreams, often mocking her for being fanciful. Her younger brother Derek teases her, while her mother remains silent, weighed down by domestic responsibilities. Sophie shares a special bond with her elder brother Geoff, whom she idolizes. She longs to be a part of his mysterious world and confides in him, even when he doubts her stories.

Sophie's character reflects the universal adolescent desire to break free from limitations and be someone extraordinary. Her interactions with her family highlight the tension between youthful dreams and adult realism, making her a relatable and tragic figure in the story.

Marking Scheme (5 marks):

- 1 mark: Introduction of character
- 2 marks: Description with textual support
- 1 mark: Analysis of relationships
- 1 mark: Conclusion with insight

3. Value-Based Question

Q: What values and life lessons does Going Places convey to young readers?

Answer: Going Places imparts important values and life lessons about ambition, self-awareness, and the importance of distinguishing dreams from reality. Through Sophie's experiences, the story encourages readers to dream but also to remain grounded.

Sophie's vivid imagination leads her to believe in a romanticized version of life, where she meets celebrities and escapes her working-class existence. However, her disappointment at the end—when Danny Casey doesn't show up—teaches her, and the reader, that unchecked fantasies can lead to emotional pain. The story also emphasizes the value of honesty, as Sophie's lies create tension within her family and social circle. Her brother Geoff's cautious skepticism and her father's disapproval reflect the adult world's emphasis on practicality and truth.

Ultimately, the story teaches that while dreaming is natural and even necessary during adolescence, it must be tempered with realism. It encourages young readers to pursue their goals with determination, but also to accept their circumstances and work steadily toward change rather than escape into illusion.

Marking Scheme (5 marks):

- 1 mark: Identification of values
- 2 marks: Supporting examples from the text
- 1 mark: Relevance to broader context
- 1 mark: Conclusion with reflection

4. Speech-Based Question

Q: Imagine you are Sophie. Prepare a speech on "Dreams and Reality" for your school assembly.

Answer: Good morning everyone. I'm Sophie, and today I want to speak about something close to every teenager's heart—dreams and reality. We all dream of becoming someone extraordinary, of living a life filled with glamour, success, and admiration. Dreams give us hope and help us rise above the ordinary.

But sometimes, dreams can take us too far from reality. I imagined meeting Danny Casey, the football star, and believed he would come to meet me again. I waited by the canal, full of hope, but he never came. That moment taught me something important—dreams are beautiful, but they must be balanced with truth. My family didn't believe me, and even my brother Geoff doubted me. It hurt, but it also helped me grow.

So, my message to you is this: never stop dreaming, but don't lose yourself in illusions. Work hard, stay grounded, and let your dreams guide you—not blind you. Thank you.

Marking Scheme (5 marks):

- 1 mark: Clear opening and relevance of topic
- 2 marks: Use of textual references and examples
- 1 mark: Personal insight or reflection
- 1 mark: Effective conclusion

5. Diary Entry-Based Question

Q: Imagine you are Sophie. Write a diary entry after waiting for Danny Casey by the canal.

Answer: Dear Diary, Today I waited by the canal for Danny Casey. I was so sure he'd come. I sat beneath the elm tree, imagining him walking out of the shadows, smiling, ready to give me the autograph he promised. But the longer I waited, the more I felt the pangs of doubt. Geoff said he wouldn't come. Maybe he was right.

I kept telling myself that Danny and I knew the truth, even if no one else believed me. But it's hard—this sadness, this knowing that I'll never be able to prove it. I imagined the walk home, Geoff's disappointed face, and Dad's anger if he ever found out. I just wanted something special, something magical in my life.

Still, I'll hold on to the memory. Even if it was only in my mind, it was mine. And maybe that's enough—for now.

Marking Scheme (5 marks):

- 1 mark: Authentic voice and diary format
- 2 marks: Reference to the event and emotional response
- 1 mark: Reflective insight or learning
- 1 mark: Thoughtful conclusion
