

RAMCO VIDYA MANDIR SR. SEC. SCHOOL, THAMARAikulAM
CLASS 12 ENGLISH REVISION – SR 4 THE ENEMY

Marks :

Name :

Duration :

Exam No. :

Section A: Extract Based Comprehension (3 × 5 = 15 marks)

Extract 1

"If I had not met a professor of anatomy, perhaps I would not have become a surgeon," Sadao said. 'And if I had not gone to America, I would not have met you.'"

Comprehension Questions:

1. MCQ: What does this statement reveal about Sadao's view of his life choices?

- A) He regrets going to America
- B) He believes fate shaped his life
- C) He blames the professor for his dilemma
- D) He wishes he had stayed in Japan

☐ Answer: B) He believes fate shaped his life

2. MCQ: Why did Sadao wait to fall in love with Hana?

- A) He was unsure of her background
- B) He wanted to complete his studies first
- C) He feared his father's disapproval
- D) He was already engaged

☐ Answer: C) He feared his father's disapproval

3. Assertion–Reasoning:

Assertion (A): Sadao's education abroad influenced his ethical decisions.

Reason (R): Exposure to Western values made him prioritize humanity over nationalism.

- A) Both A and R are true, and R is the correct explanation of A
- B) Both A and R are true, but R is not the correct explanation of A
- C) A is true, but R is false
- D) A is false, but R is true

☐ Answer: A) Both A and R are true, and R is the correct explanation of A

4. Fill in the Blank: Sadao met Hana at an American professor's _____.

☐ Answer: house

5. Find a Word: Choose the word that best describes "a belief that events are guided by destiny."

- A) Coincidence
- B) Fate
- C) Luck
- D) Choice

○ ☐ Answer: B) Fate

Extract 2

"He is wounded," Sadao whispered. 'He is not dead.' Hana cried out in fear. 'What if he should die? What shall we do with the body?'"

Comprehension Questions:

1. MCQ: What does Hana's reaction suggest about her internal conflict?
A) She is indifferent to the soldier's condition
B) She is overwhelmed by fear and moral uncertainty
C) She is eager to help the soldier
D) She is angry with Sadao
☐ Answer: B) She is overwhelmed by fear and moral uncertainty
2. MCQ: Why is the question "What shall we do with the body?" significant?
A) It shows Hana's concern for burial rituals
B) It reflects the fear of being caught harboring an enemy
C) It highlights her medical knowledge
D) It reveals her lack of empathy
☐ Answer: B) It reflects the fear of being caught harboring an enemy
3. Assertion-Reasoning:
Assertion (A): Hana was emotionally disturbed by the presence of the soldier.
Reason (R): She had never seen a wounded man before.
A) Both A and R are true, and R is the correct explanation of A
B) Both A and R are true, but R is not the correct explanation of A
C) A is true, but R is false
D) A is false, but R is true
☐ Answer: B) Both A and R are true, but R is not the correct explanation of A
4. Fill in the Blank: Hana feared the consequences of harboring an _____ soldier.
☐ Answer: enemy
5. Find a Word: Pick the word that best means "deep fear or anxiety."
A) Courage
B) Terror
C) Panic
D) Dread
☐ Answer: D) Dread

Extract 3

"The General was in pain. He said, 'I trust you, Sadao. You are the only one who can save me.'"

Comprehension Questions:

1. MCQ: Why did the General refrain from punishing Sadao for sheltering an enemy?
A) He was unaware of the situation
B) He needed Sadao's medical expertise
C) He sympathized with the soldier
D) He feared public backlash
☐ Answer: B) He needed Sadao's medical expertise
2. MCQ: What does the General's statement reveal about his priorities?
A) He values loyalty over health
B) He prioritizes personal survival over national duty
C) He is committed to justice

D) He is unaware of Sadao's actions

☐ Answer: B) He prioritizes personal survival over national duty

3. Assertion–Reasoning:

Assertion (A): The General trusted Sadao despite knowing he harbored an enemy.

Reason (R): The General believed in Sadao's loyalty to Japan.

A) Both A and R are true, and R is the correct explanation of A

B) Both A and R are true, but R is not the correct explanation of A

C) A is true, but R is false

D) A is false, but R is true

☐ Answer: B) Both A and R are true, but R is not the correct explanation of A

4. Fill in the Blank: The General's trust in Sadao was based on his _____ skills.

☐ Answer: surgical

5. Find a Word: Choose the word that best represents “a contradiction between words and actions.”

A) Hypocrisy

B) Loyalty

C) Trust

D) Integrity

Section B: Short Answer Questions (12 × 2 = 24 marks)

Story-Based Questions (3 × 2 = 6 Marks)

1. Why did Dr. Sadao treat the American soldier despite knowing it was a punishable offense? ☐ As a surgeon, Sadao was bound by his professional ethics to save lives. His medical duty overpowered his national loyalty, compelling him to treat the wounded enemy.
2. How did Hana respond to the presence of the enemy soldier in their home? ☐ Though initially fearful and hesitant, Hana overcame her discomfort and supported her husband—washing the soldier herself and assisting during the operation when the servants refused.
3. Why did the General not have Dr. Sadao arrested for harboring an enemy? ☐ The General prioritized his own health and trusted only Sadao's surgical skills. He postponed action against Sadao to ensure his availability for medical emergencies.

Value-Based Questions (3 × 2 = 6 Marks)

1. What moral dilemma does Dr. Sadao face, and how does he resolve it? ☐ Torn between patriotism and humanity, Sadao chooses to uphold his medical oath by saving the enemy soldier, later ensuring the man's escape to avoid betraying his country.
2. What does Hana's behavior reveal about the role of empathy in conflict situations? ☐ Hana's willingness to care for the enemy despite fear and social pressure reflects how empathy can transcend prejudice, even in times of war.
3. What message does the story convey about the universality of human suffering? ☐ The narrative shows that pain and vulnerability are not bound by nationality—compassion must extend to all, even those labeled as enemies.

Competency-Based Questions (4 × 2 = 8 Marks)

1. How does the story highlight the conflict between personal ethics and national duty? □ Sadao's decision to treat the enemy soldier despite wartime hostility underscores the tension between moral responsibility and patriotic expectations.
2. In what way does the General's character reflect the contradictions of authority? □ Though a symbol of power, the General acts out of self-interest, protecting Sadao for personal gain while ignoring his duty to report treason—revealing hypocrisy in leadership.
3. How does the setting of the beach contribute to the story's thematic depth? □ The isolated beach symbolizes moral isolation and the boundary between life and death, serving as the physical and emotional threshold where Sadao makes his ethical choice.
4. What does the ending suggest about Sadao's emotional state after the soldier's escape? □ Sadao feels relieved yet conflicted—he has fulfilled his duty as a doctor without betraying his country, but the emotional weight of his choices lingers.

Literary Device-Based Questions (2 × 2 = 4 Marks)

1. Identify and explain the irony in the General's promise to send assassins. □ The General promises to eliminate the soldier but never acts—ironically, his inaction protects both Sadao and the enemy, exposing the gap between words and deeds.
2. What does the wounded soldier symbolize in the story? □ He represents the human cost of war—stripped of identity and politics, he becomes a test of compassion and moral courage for those who encounter him.

Section C: Long Answer Questions

1. Theme-Based Question

Q: Discuss the major theme of the chapter 'The Enemy'. Marking Scheme: • Introduction to theme – 1 mark • Para 1 (text-based evidence) – 1.5 marks • Para 2 (expansion and insight) – 1.5 marks • Conclusion – 1 mark

Answer: The central theme of "The Enemy" revolves around the conflict between humanitarian values and national loyalty during wartime. Pearl S. Buck explores how moral integrity can challenge societal expectations, especially in times of political hostility.

Dr. Sadao, a Japanese surgeon, finds an injured American soldier on the beach. Despite the soldier being an enemy, Sadao chooses to treat him, guided by his medical ethics and personal conscience. The narrative presents multiple layers of tension—between duty and compassion, fear and courage, and societal norms versus individual morality. Hana's initial hesitation and the servants' refusal to help further highlight the social pressures surrounding Sadao's decision.

Buck uses this story to question the rigidity of patriotism when it conflicts with basic human empathy. Sadao's internal struggle and eventual decision to help the soldier escape reflect the triumph of ethical responsibility over blind nationalism. The story suggests that true humanity lies in transcending borders and prejudices to uphold life and dignity.

In conclusion, "The Enemy" challenges readers to consider the moral cost of war and the courage it takes to act with compassion in a divided world.

2. Value-Based Question

Q: What values are reflected through Dr. Sadao's actions in the story? Marking Scheme: Same as above.

Answer: Dr. Sadao's actions in "The Enemy" reflect values of compassion, professional integrity, and moral courage. His decision to treat an enemy soldier during wartime is a powerful testament to the strength of personal ethics.

Despite knowing the risks—social ostracism, legal consequences, and potential betrayal—Sadao chooses to save the wounded man. He does not let hatred or fear cloud his judgment as a doctor. His wife Hana, though initially hesitant, supports him, demonstrating empathy and loyalty. The couple's quiet defiance of societal norms shows their commitment to doing what is right, not what is easy.

These values are especially relevant in today's polarized world. Sadao's story teaches that humanity must rise above political divisions. His courage to act ethically, even when it could cost him everything, inspires readers to reflect on their own moral choices.

In conclusion, the story upholds the values of empathy, integrity, and ethical responsibility—reminding us that true strength lies in standing up for what is right, even when the world disagrees.

3. Character-Based Question

Q: Examine the character of Dr. Sadao and how his internal conflict shapes the narrative. Marking Scheme: Same as above.

Answer: Dr. Sadao is portrayed as a skilled surgeon, a loyal Japanese citizen, and a man of deep moral conviction. His character is defined by the intense internal conflict he faces when he discovers a wounded American soldier on the beach.

As a doctor, he is trained to save lives. As a citizen of Japan during wartime, he is expected to reject and report the enemy. This contradiction forms the backbone of the story. Sadao's decision to treat the soldier, hide him, and eventually help him escape reveals his struggle between duty and conscience. His discomfort, sleepless nights, and fear of being discovered show the emotional toll of his choices.

Through Sadao, Buck explores the complexity of human behavior under pressure. He is not a hero in the traditional sense—he is flawed, hesitant, and afraid. Yet, his ability to act with compassion despite these fears makes him deeply relatable and admirable.

In conclusion, Dr. Sadao's character is a study in moral courage. His internal conflict drives the narrative and invites readers to reflect on the meaning of ethical action in a world governed by war and prejudice.

4. Article-Based Question

Q: Write an article on 'Compassion in Times of War: Lessons from "The Enemy"'. Marking Scheme:

- Introduction to theme – 1 mark
- Para 1 (text-based evidence) – 1.5 marks
- Para 2 (expansion and insight) – 1.5 marks
- Conclusion – 1 mark

Answer: War often divides people into enemies and allies, but stories like Pearl S. Buck’s The Enemy remind us that compassion can transcend these boundaries. The narrative centers on Dr. Sadao, a Japanese surgeon who chooses to save an American soldier during World War II, despite the risks to his reputation and safety.

Sadao’s decision is not driven by politics but by his medical ethics and human empathy. He treats the wounded man in secret, even as his servants abandon him and his wife Hana trembles with fear. The soldier, once a faceless enemy, becomes a vulnerable human being in need of care. This shift in perception is the heart of the story’s message.

Buck’s portrayal of moral courage challenges readers to rethink the meaning of loyalty and humanity. In a world torn by conflict, the story urges us to act with conscience, not just compliance. Compassion, even in times of war, is not weakness—it is strength.

In conclusion, The Enemy teaches that the true battle is not between nations, but between fear and empathy. And in choosing kindness, we win something far greater than victory—we preserve our humanity.

5. Speech-Based Question

Q: Imagine you are Dr. Sadao. Deliver a speech reflecting on your decision to save the enemy soldier.

Marking Scheme: Same as above.

Answer: Respected colleagues and fellow citizens, Today I speak not as a surgeon or a patriot, but as a human being who faced a difficult choice. When I found the wounded American soldier on our beach, I knew he was the enemy. But I also knew he was dying. And I could not let him die.

I was afraid—of the law, of betrayal, of losing everything. Yet I remembered my oath as a doctor: to save lives, not judge them. My wife Hana stood by me, even when our servants left. We operated, we cared, and we watched him heal.

Some may call me a traitor. But I ask—can compassion ever be treason? I did not betray my country. I upheld the values that make us truly civilized. I helped the man escape, not to protect him, but to protect my conscience.

Let us remember: war may divide us, but humanity must unite us. Thank you.

6. Story-Based Question

Q: Summarize the events of “The Enemy” and explain what makes the story powerful.

Marking Scheme: Same as above.

Answer: “The Enemy” begins with Dr. Sadao and his wife Hana discovering a wounded American soldier on the beach near their home in Japan. Despite the soldier being an enemy during wartime, Sadao decides to treat him, guided by his medical ethics and personal conscience.

The couple hides the soldier in their house, performing surgery and nursing him back to health. Their servants leave in protest, and Hana struggles with fear and doubt. Meanwhile, Sadao faces pressure from the General, who promises to send assassins but never follows through. Eventually, Sadao arranges for the soldier’s escape by boat, ensuring his safety without compromising national security.

The story's power lies in its emotional depth and moral complexity. It challenges readers to consider the cost of compassion and the courage it takes to act ethically in a hostile world. Through Sadao's quiet defiance, Buck delivers a timeless message about humanity, integrity, and the choices that define us.

7. Author's Point of View Question

Q: What is Pearl S. Buck's perspective on war and humanity in "The Enemy"? Marking Scheme: Same as above.

Answer: Pearl S. Buck's perspective in The Enemy is deeply humanistic. She does not glorify war or patriotism; instead, she focuses on the moral dilemmas faced by individuals caught in its grip. Through Dr. Sadao's story, she explores how compassion can survive even in the harshest conditions.

Buck portrays war as a force that dehumanizes people, turning them into symbols of threat or loyalty. But she also shows that empathy and ethics can resist this dehumanization. Sadao's decision to save the enemy soldier is not just a medical act—it is a moral stand against hatred and fear.

Her writing suggests that true courage lies in choosing kindness over conformity. Buck's narrative is not about heroes or villains—it's about ordinary people making extraordinary choices. She believes that humanity must prevail over politics, and that ethical action is the highest form of patriotism.

In conclusion, Buck's viewpoint is clear: war tests our values, but it is compassion that defines our legacy.

8. Diary Entry-Based Question

Q: Write a diary entry from Hana's perspective after the soldier's escape. Marking Scheme: Same as above.

Answer: 15 September Dear Diary, He's gone. The American soldier we cared for has escaped into the night, just as Sadao planned. I watched the empty beach this morning, half expecting to see a boat, half hoping never to see it again.

I feel relief—but also fear. What if someone finds out? What if Sadao is punished? Yet deep down, I know we did the right thing. That man was not a monster. He was just a boy, scared and broken. And we helped him heal.

I remember the night Sadao operated, the silence, the blood, the trembling in my hands. I remember the servants leaving, the loneliness, the weight of secrecy. But I also remember his smile when he stood again, strong and grateful.

Tonight, I sleep with a quiet heart. We chose kindness. And in this cruel world, that is enough.